334 Is sex meant to be here?

It sure is.

Without sex, none of us would be here! Sexual intercourse is the way we reproduce.

335 When you get older do you feel like having sexual intercourse?

Most people do, especially if they find someone they are very strongly attracted to, but it is not for absolutely everyone.

It is such a common idea that young people who become interested in each other as they grow up also will be interested in sexual intercourse. In so many books and movies nowadays, they suggest that two people get into bed together for sex, before they even know each other's names. This is not what usually happens in reality. When boyfriend/girlfriend relationships start, usually, some time is taken to get to know each other through talking, going out, mixing with friends and so on. This may progress to holding hands and kissing. You may be surprised at how nervous you feel even about that amount of physical contact, particularly at first. Romantic relationships may not last long enough to ever progress to sexual intercourse, and many people make a conscious decision to wait until a certain kind of relationship develops before it happens. So relax and enjoy the excitement of crushes and being in love, without feeling that you have to have sex...because you don't!

336 Can someone have sex then have sex again straight away and with more than one woman?

After a man has released sperm during sexual intercourse, the penis usually rests and relaxes for a while before another erection can occur.

In any case, this doesn't sound very romantic or respectful!
