

Parents & Kids alike ...READ ME FIRST!

Questions?

Questions for this book came directly from children in NSW.

They were collected over a decade from children aged from 10 to 14 years, most of whom participated in Interrelate Family Centres, Inc. School Services programs. Interrelate is a not-for-profit organisation committed to educating Australian children about relationships and sexuality; in fact, all proceeds from the sale of this and another book, 400+ Questions Kids Have about Relationships, go directly to ensure the valuable programs they provide for our school communities in NSW will continue.

Talking about sexuality often gets a little complicated!

In this book, those questions have been answered simply and respectfully...a good common sense approach to genuine enquiries that were most often collected at the end of sessions. They were collected anonymously to not only sidestep any embarrassment, but also, to make sure no question ever goes unanswered.

Ideally, parents are the primary educators of their children, so with that in mind Interrelate created this book as a family resource to help the sometimes tricky conversation, begin...to help it move along...and to have solid outcomes for both kids and their parents.

First stop:

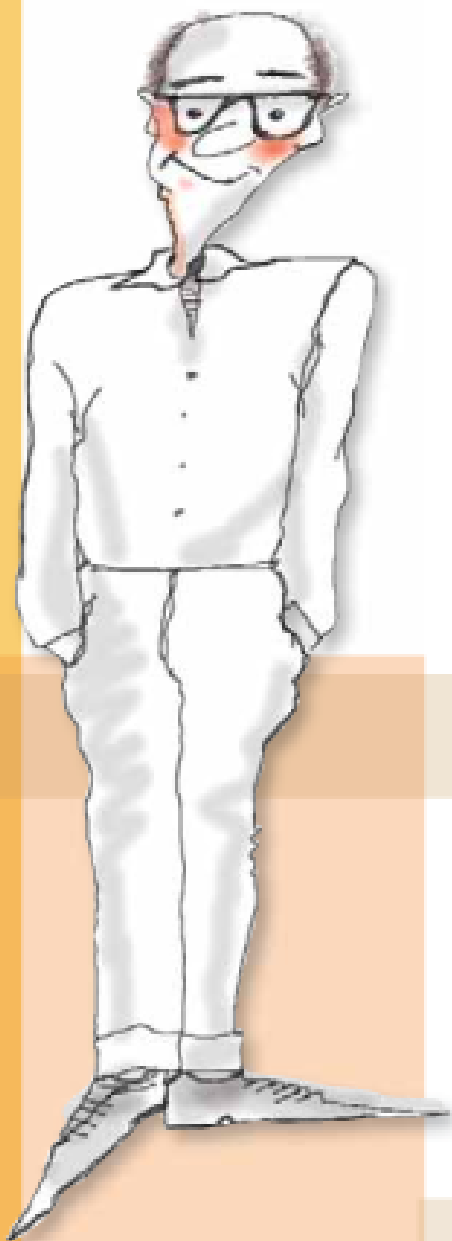

Mum and Dad

Second stop:

Questions Kids have about Sex

Answers?

Interrelate Family Centres although community based, is a leading provider of relationship services in New South Wales. It began its pioneering work in 1926 with the introduction of authoritative sexuality education for young people. Today over 40,000 students and family members participate in its school and family-based programs every year. Interrelate educators are experts in the field, and have the passion to help children and the experience to know how to handle the kinds of questions that arise from discussions about sexuality and development.

how do I talk to a girl